THEME PRESENTATION

Education is a human right that facilitates the enjoyment of other rights and citizenship of every human being, for this reason, no one should be excluded of their access. In Agenda 2030, all countries in the world have set out to work for an inclusive, equitable and quality education and lifelong learning for everyone.

Education begins at birth and in early childhood when the foundation for a comprehensive, full and powerful human development are laid.

This process is only possible through rich and purposeful social relations within the framework of each culture. Children's links with their families, significant people, their peers, their teachers, neighbors, professionals, community members and others, are social devices that allow them to start building their reality, giving meaning to the relationships it establishes, making knowledge and cultural appropriation possible.

At the 2019 International Conference, OMEP proposes to reflect on:

1. The diversity of identities that are combined in the care and education of early childhood (ECCE)
2. The cultures in which, and for which, development is possible, highlighting the achievement of equity, inclusion and gender equality.
